

DEWEY DECIDES THE QUESTION

Say That The United States Must Have More Battleships Larger And Better.

SCANS THE ANGLO-JAPANESE PACT

Battleships Carrying Guns Of At Least Twelve Inch Calibre Are A Necessity In Modern Warfare.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAN.]
Washington, Sept. 29.—While Admiral Dewey has not studied the new Anglo-Japanese treaty closely, he believes the United States should be prepared by means of an efficient navy to protect its own interests, regardless of alliances between friendly powers.
Admiral Dewey had just finished presiding over a meeting of the general board of the navy when he was seen.
"I have not had an opportunity to study the Anglo-Japanese treaty closely," said the admiral. "Two points I have observed seem to me to be important. Great Britain has been able to withdraw all her battleships from the far East and concentrate them in English waters and the Mediterranean. She also has arranged to establish a strong naval base at Singapore. Look at the map and you will see that henceforth the British and Japanese will be able to maintain a strong patrol of the sea from the Mediterranean to the northeasternmost point of the Pacific. We have our base in the Philippines. Of course, we don't want to fight, and our interests will be respected and we will not have to fight if we are ready."
Lesson of Eastern War.
The admiral was asked if any of the later reports received regarding the naval operations of the later war had revealed any new lessons.
"As I have repeatedly said, the greatest lesson of the war in the far East is the necessity for bigger ships and big guns. In the battle between the fleets of Rojstevsky and Togo the damage was done by the big guns. The twelve-inch guns of the Japanese ships did most of the damage. In my opinion, one Japanese officer said it was a battle of wireless telegraphy. By means of his scouts Togo knew before he saw any of the Russians—when, in fact, they were a hundred miles away—the composition of Rojstevsky's fleet, the formation of the vessels, and the course they were steering.

"If you are going to fight, as the Russians and Japanese did, at a range of three miles, anything under a twelve-inch gun won't be of much use against armor. The eight-inch gun is not effective.
Speed Must Be Considered.
"It is said in England that I have not dwelt upon the importance of speed. Speed goes with bigger ships. With a bigger ship than we now have we can install larger engines. In England, where the navy is so vital, anything that touches the navy is of great interest to them. The new Dreadnaught, of 18,000 tons, which is under construction as a result of the lessons learned during the war, will have a speed of twenty-one knots. We ought to have battleships of twenty-one knots, too.
"The splendid way in which the Japanese ships were handled may be attributed in part to the number of flag officers which were attached to the fleet. There were a commander in chief, three vice admirals and ten rear admirals. This shows the importance of high ranking and efficient personnel. We must have more flag officers with our fleet."
It is the opinion of some statesmen in Washington that the United States must enter into an alliance or build a larger navy. Naval officers generally prefer the latter as more in keeping with American tradition and cheaper.

CLEVER FORGER DEFRAUDS A LARGE NEW YORK BANK

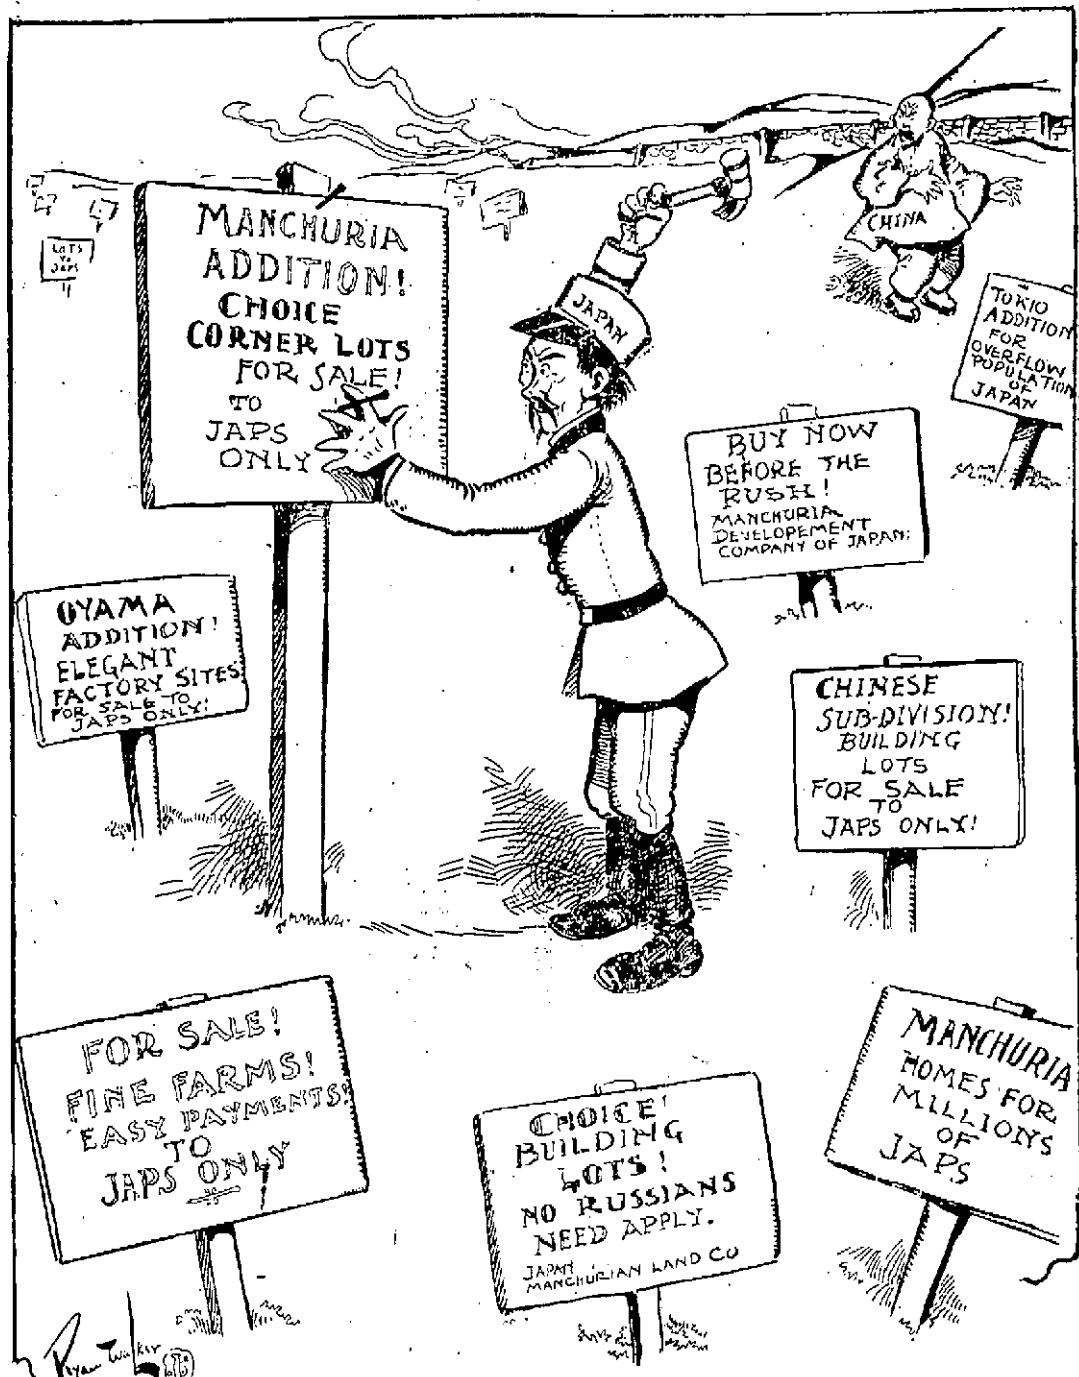

Secures Funds On Worthless Paper From Shrewd Financiers Of Gotham Easily.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAN.]
New York, Sept. 29.—The National City bank was recently victimized by a clever forger, the details of whose scheme has just come out. The forger presented a bogus check bearing the name of a well-known stock exchange firm and received in return securities valued at about $360,000.
Pearl & Co., stockbrokers at 27 William street, recently negotiated a one-day loan for $500,000 with this institution. On Wednesday a check for the amount of the loan, plus $37.50 for the one day's interest, was presented at the bank by a stranger, who received the securities deposited by Pearl & Co. for their loan.
Detectives Have a Clue.
The bank on which the brokers' check was drawn is one with which Pearl & Co. never had an account, so the forgery was not discovered until the check had passed through the clearing house exchange, when it was promptly branded as fictitious. A private detective agency was called in and transfer of the securities was at once stopped. The detectives intimate that they have a clue to the identity of the forger, who is believed to have had one or more accomplices.
It is believed that the former had an intimate knowledge of Pearl & Co.'s affairs.
E. A. Slayback, junior member of Pearl & Co., said: "The odd amount of the forged check represents a day's interest at 4 1/2 per cent. As a matter of fact, the loss is recorded on our books at 4 1/2 per cent. Clearly somebody must have had knowledge of the loan. Yet had it been some one in our employ the interest would have been computed at 4 1/2 per cent."

The firm of Pearl & Co. consists of Dyer Pearl & Slayback. Mr. Pearl is now in Europe. The members of the firm own stock exchange seats and their operations on the board have at various times been very extensive.
The securities offered by Pearl & Co. for their loan and surrendered by the bank for a piece of worthless paper, include 1,000 shares of United States Steel common, 1,000 shares of Rock Island common, 1,000 shares of Metropolitan Street railway, 700 shares Missouri Pacific, 200 shares North American company, 47 American Tobacco company 6 per cent bonds and some Wabash debenture bonds.

WOULD HAVE BLOWN UP ALL COALITION LEADERS TODAY

Box Containing An Infernal Machine Is Found In Their Meeting Place.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAN.]
Budapest, Sept. 29.—It is believed that an attempt was made to kill or maim the entire executive committee of the coalition leaders by a huge dynamite bomb. The meeting was to have been held in a hotel in the city and just before the leaders gathered a servant discovered an infernal machine concealed under a stairway that if exploded would have wrecked the room the leaders were to confer in. A huge demonstration is being planned for the first part of October and it is feared that a conflict with the troops may result. Germany is still being bitterly denounced for what is termed its interference in Hungarian affairs.

BANK ROBBERS SECURE $10,000

Explosion Wrecks Safe at Eldorado, Destroying All the Paper Money, Bandits Secure Gold.

Eldorado, Ill., Sept. 29.—The banking house of C. P. Burnett & Sons here was entered by burglars about 2 o'clock Thursday morning. The safe was blown open and about $10,000 stolen. The report and fear of the explosion awakened a number of citizens in the immediate vicinity of the bank and, surmising what was up on account of the unusual hour, they secured their weapons and arrived on the scene just as the robbers were leaving with their booty. A hot chase followed, in which a number of shots were fired by both parties, but the robbers made their escape.
The force of the explosion wrecked the interior of the building to a considerable extent. All paper currency contained in the safe was blown to atoms and the robbers were able to take only the gold. Eldorado is without street lights and on account of the darkness the pursuers were unable to keep track of the robbers, who are presumed to have taken a northerly direction in their flight. A reward has been offered for their capture.

STATE NOTES

The case against John E. Willings, a wealthy La Crosse business man, charged with subordination of perjury in a bankruptcy case, has been dismissed on motion of United States District Attorney Wheeler, who, on investigation, found the charges against Mr. Willings to be unfounded.
It has been discovered that many automobile owners in this state and in Racine are carrying "false" numbers. Last Sunday an automobile No. 11w, struck a farmer's team north of Racine, wrecking a wagon, killing a horse, and injuring two inmates of the wagon. Records at Madison showed that E. J. S. Wright of Portage, Wis., had that number. A letter received from Portage states that the automobile No. 11w, has not been out of Portage this year.

Two natives of the Mosely island, who were trading, were waylaid near Mallicolo by the Kanakas and slaughtered. Their bodies were then taken to the coast village tribes, who assembled for a feast on human flesh. A French trader suspected the natives to be sent to punish the natives for several murders and depredations of white settlers. The natives arrested three chiefs and burned a village. The natives were ambushed and one was killed.

GOVERNMENT IS GIVEN POINTS

THE GRAND JURY WAS ALL CORRECT

Judge Humphrey Hands Down His Decision Regarding Certain Disputed Points Of Law This Morning.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-MORAN.]
Chicago, Sept. 29.—In the first ruling by United States Judge Humphrey in the beef trust cases the government won the contention. This morning the court passed upon the pleas 1, 2 and 5 as to the legality of the grand jury which indicted the packers, and declared it could not be attacked on the third and fourth pleas relating to the publicity in drawing the jury. The court stated it had given more trouble but there was no doubt in his mind the act itself was so loose and indefinite that the packers' pleas would not hold, therefore it sustained the government's demurrer. Attorney John S. Miller for the packers requested a delay of two weeks and filed a demurrer to the indictment. The judge allowed time to October 5th. The demurrer will be argued a week from Monday, with two days for the argument, when the packers must come into court and plead guilty or not guilty.

CONNECTIONS MADE POSSIBLE BY THE NEW I. I. & M. RAILROAD

This cut shows the connections that will be made by the Illinois, Iowa & Minnesota railway, which may build to this city next summer. The cut is used by courtesy of the Rockford Republic. It shows at a glance the great benefit the line will be to Janesville's shippers. It completely belts the city of Chicago and crosses every line entering that center. Then it will stretch away through Beloit, Janesville, and into Milwaukee and whatever further extensions that prove to be practical when that branch is completed.

According to Alderman Hegelmeyer of Stoughton the Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota railroad, known as the Rockford route, which recently commenced operation, will enter his town from the Forest City, via Janesville. He believes that the story of the Indiana, Illinois and Minnesota belt line constructing a track from Janesville to Stoughton is based on something more than a rumor. He states that this company has for sometime been engaged in securing title to a right-of-way that was graded between Janesville and Milwaukee some years prior to the civil war which never became a railroad, and was to be called the Milwaukee Southern. Most of the line has been ploughed and fenced by the farmers, who own land on either side of it. Mr. Hegelmeyer, Sr., worked on the roadbed and on the few bridges that were built at different points. The line passed through his farm near Milwaukee. Mayor Rose declares he will disapprove the franchise applied for by the company, but it is understood that the Milwaukee common council will pass it over his veto.
Another rumor floating about is to the effect that the Milwaukee Southern project is being revived by the holders of the original franchise and they have reached an agreement with the I. I. & M. company, whereby the latter built to Stoughton, connecting the Rockford route with Milwaukee through the Southern.

HUNGARY SEEKING FREEDOM FROM AUSTRIAN EMPIRE

Brief Summary of The History of This Ancient Kingdom of Magyars.

(Written for the Gazette by Major Davis.)

With the announcement of a political crisis in Hungary and the possible selection of Francis Kossuth, a descendant of the great revolutionary leader, Louis Kossuth, as King, are recalled many of the stories that have been prevalent during the past sixteen years regarding the death of the late Crown Prince Rudolph. Indirectly Wisconsin people are interested in this story, as some two years ago it was alleged by a Marquette woman, that the Crown Prince was alive and had visited at her home. So positive was her story that much credence was given it in the minds of the doubtful until it was set at rest by the Imperial court of Austria. Still later, during the past winter, three former Austrian residents who now live in Boston claimed that they knew the whereabouts of the supposed deceased Crown Prince and that they could not have been mistaken.

The Late Crown Prince
The late Archduke Rudolph was the eldest son of the present Emperor Francis Josef, and his wife the Empress Elizabeth who was killed by an anarchist in Geneva on September 10, 1898. He was the idol of the Hungarian people and his untimely death in 1889 had a great deal to do with the present troubles in Hungary. Rudolph understood the Hungarians and spoke the Magyar language. He was born in 1858 and in 1881 married Stephanie, daughter of the present King of Belgium. After his suicide the widowed Princess married Count Lonyay. Rudolph was reported to have shot himself beside the body of a woman, Marie Vetsera, whom he loved too well and too rashly, at his hunting lodge near Baden. The affair was hushed up as much as possible and the body of the supposed suicide was buried with but slight ceremony.

Many Reports
Since his supposed death reports have come from time to time that he is still alive. The Marquette woman was positive of her identification, the Boston, New York and Philadelphia Austrians of theirs. Men who had served with him in the Austrian army even swear to identifications such as scars they know the Crown Prince had. Much mystery has always surrounded this death and probably the truth will never be known. One theory that is advanced is that Prince Rudolph had waited the death of his father, Francis Josef, to announce his claim to the Austro-Hungarian throne. He would be warmly welcomed by the Hungarians, who mourn his death to this day.

A Troubled Country
There are many in Janesville who remember the triumphal reception awarded Louis Kossuth on his arrival in this country in 1850, fresh from a Turkish prison. There are some who know the history of that ill-fated Hungarian rebellion of 1848 which lasted until Hungary was a whipped and cowed country. Louis Kossuth, leader of this revolt, was in the forefront of the struggle for Hungarian independence. His efforts were unsuccessful and he fled to Turkey, where he was thrown into prison and only given his freedom on the earnest solicitation of England and the United States. There are some who were in New York when Kossuth made his entrance into that harbor on board the United States gunboat that had been sent to convey him from his Turkish prison. Kossuth was the hero of the hour and it seems a strange fatality that a descendant of this great leader should again be talked of as leader of the hosts of Hungary against Austria.

Austro-Hungary
The population of Hungary comprises one-sixth of the Austrian empire. This unwieldy aggregation of eastern Europe takes its name "Austrian" from the word meaning "eastern kingdom." It is composed of five kingdoms—Hungary, Bohemia, Galicia, Illyria and Dalmatia, one grand Duchy—Austria, one principality—Slovakia, the margravate of Moravia, and one country—Tyrol. The original margravate of Austria was set aside by the great Charlemagne in the 8th century as an eastern boundary for his vast empire. It struggled along in the wars of the period until it fell into the hands of the great German, Count Rudolph of Hapsburg, in 1282. Two centuries later in 1438 Hungary passed under the rule of this famous family which had held sway from the days of Count Rudolph until the present time.

By Marriage
Albert II of Austria became by marriage with the daughter of the Emperor Sigismund of Hungary the King of that country. His early death threw the kingship back to the native Hungarian princes and it was not until 1540 that an Austrian really became the head of this turbulent kingdom and since then the house of Hapsburg have ruled with hands of iron. In 1527 the Hapsburgs and the native princes of Hungary inter-married, but Ferdinand, and Archduke of Austria and brother of King Charles V. was not allowed to take the throne on the death of his brother-in-law, the King. In his place John Zepolya Warode of Transylvania was crowned King and after a fruitless war was allowed to hold his dearly bought kingdom until his death in 1540.

Days of Bondage
Truly since this time it may be said that the days of bondage for Hungary began. Leopold the first in 1554 drove the poor Hungarians to an open revolt, but they were subdued and treated as a conquered nation. One of the great periods of their national history came when Marie Theresa, daughter of King Charles of Austria, appended to them in their assembly for their aid to help her regain the throne of her fathers from the usurper who threatened her life and crown. To a man they rallied to their dear princess and by their efforts they drove back the invaders and placed her strongly upon the throne.

Marie Theresa opened up the way for great reforms. Her son Joseph followed in her footsteps and this great queen, perhaps excepting Elizabeth of England and Catherine of Russia, did more than any other woman to make the map of Europe what it is today.

Warlike People
Austria and Hungary have played an important part in the warfare of the world. Siding first with Poland, then against it; fighting the Turks, the Russians, the Germans, the French, and then fighting as allies of these same nations, Austria took part in the Thirty-year war, that devastated Europe, the seven years war, the French revolution, the Napoleonic wars, first as an opponent to the latter, then as an ally of the latter, and then as an ally against Russia. It has fought the Turks and been saved from complete capture and dissolution by the famous John Sobieski of Poland and has then helped crush and divide the ancient Kingdom of Poland into the servitude it today suffers. The blood of the King, the Hapsburgs, flows in the veins of the majority of the world's rulers and the firm hold this family has kept on their ancient grant has made them the oldest if not the most powerful royal family in Europe.

Civil War
The Hapsburgs have ruled with an iron hand. Poor Hungary has perhaps received more than its share of attention. Composed of a warlike people, the Magyars, it has fought stubbornly for its rights. In 1807 it gained a separate assembly and the use of its beloved language in the army and schools of its country. A protestant nation it has suffered with the rest of Europe during the great Reformation. Torn and divided, first by Turks and then by Austrians, it represents today a sturdy race of people who will fight for their rights until the last drop of their blood flows. The Austrian Empire was not known as the "Empire of the Hapsburgs" until 1804, when "Napoleon" took the title "Emperor of France" and he was followed by the King of Austria and Hungary taking the title of Emperor of Austria.

A Possibility
Should the present troubles finally result in the dissolution and separation of Hungary from Austria, the national boundaries of all Europe will need a new map-maker to again assert the nations. Germany, under the warlike tutelage of William has long had a loving eye on Hungary. He is like the fierce war-loving Hungarians in nature and would perhaps be acceptable to them as an overlord. Russia is too weak to object to such a classification, Austria would be cowed and beaten before it would take place. France could not take an active part. Italy is too weak and England alone could withstand the anger of the German god. Should, however, Hungary gain its freedom and elect a King it would be the signal for all the Balkan states and the small principalities in Europe to seek liberation from the domination that tie them to the oag of the stronger powers. The developments of the next few days will be anxiously waited by the world at large and all Europe in particular.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP ON WISCONSIN'S TEAM

Coaches King and Holt Plead With The Students To Turn-Out And Help "Root."

The frantic appeals of Coaches Phil King and Edith Holt for more material to use in the development of the University of Wisconsin football team, have had some effect, but not enough to greatly improve the situation.

That the coaches should at the very opening of the university make such speeches is remarked as being a spectacle unique in the athletic history of this community. The situation is certainly critical. A suggestion has been heard that "King is bluffing; he is hard up for material, and surprise the world at the Chicago game." There is no warrant for such a thought. King and Holt mean it when they daily repeat their words of the mass meeting Thursday night—"We're up against it." King never used to bluff, and the situation has become so critical that he caused Captain Vanderboom and Graduate Manager Downer to call a mass meeting in order to get out material for certain holes in the variety and for a strong second eleven. They all whooped it up as hard as they could and now students are earnestly trying to deliver the goods. When King coached here for seven years up to two years ago, he used to have from 45 to 50 candidates out, and the number surpassed 100 the year the game with Yale was played. But this season never has the squad numbered as high as thirty. Tuesday there were only 16 men out in uniform and only a few more spectators. All the freshmen who reported for work under Freshman Coach Driver had to be used to make a second team for the variety to practice against and freshman training was suspended until more men could be induced to come out.

"For God's sake, fellows, give us men. We are up against it and unless we quickly get about forty more candidates we can have no show to defeat Chicago. If we do not get material at once we will be worse off than ever." This speech of Coach King aroused the meager mass-meeting and amid shouts and promises of more material was recorded. Captain Vanderboom was at the meeting but the fracture of his cheek and jaw prevented him from adding his appeal to that of Coach King. Assistant Coach Holt, Manager Downer and members eleven.

While many good heavy students reformed the faculty also spoke. The training table has been started under the charge of Dr. Kraenzlein as trainer, but not enough men have been taken to it to make up two complete teams to enter the practice and the situation is alarming in that respect. There are many encouraging symptoms at Madison. Most important, it is noted, there is absolute harmony in the coaching department. King and Holt apparently agreeing perfectly. The players also agree among themselves and the discipline of the training quarters is remarkably good. "Dick" Remp, who has been justly or otherwise reported to be a chronic kicker and disturber, never seems to open his mouth except to answer, "Yes sir" or "Very well, sir." "All right, sir," and jump to execute whatever suggestion is made by the coaches. Last year it is recalled that he disputed with the coaches and would not take tutoring from Emil Skow, the greatest center rush that ever played at Madison. Remp received much "knocking" from students and the public generally, but whatever may be the reason, he is showing a splendid spirit this year and is playing a great game.

Andrew M. O'Dea, coach of the crew, who for years was trainer of the football team and whose contract now calls for that work, has issued a call for the crew candidates to report, although never before was this call issued until after Thanksgiving had relegated football for the year. It has been said against Mr. O'Dea that he is out of sympathy with the big game and desires to deprive the team of good material by calling out the crew men this early. He insists, however, that this is not so.

It burns any kind of fuel.
It holds fire all night—and all day, too, if you wish.

"Boundless risk must pay for boundless gain." And in advertising, some kind of risk must pay for any kind of gain—the ratio between risk and gain being always pretty even.

The Equitable treasury seems to

to help some.

all appear to be in it.

endorse his views on this subject.

The state is being flooded with

J. P. Morgan and other capitalists are coming to the front with money to handle the crops. There will be no stringency in the money market, and Secretary Shaw will not be called

According to statistics furnished by the Department of Commerce and Labor, the United States consumed $400,

something over five pounds per capita.
The Wisconsin crop is only a drop

Labor is scarce in Pittsburg and bricklayers are paid 80 cents an hour work. The local unions prohibit importing labor. That looks very much like a combine of some magnitude.

The steel trust don't appear to be in

The eight hour day, just now de-

Congressman Cooper has just returned from the Philippines with the Taft commission. He says that the Philippines are not yet ready for self-require years of education and civilization before they will be prepared to assume this responsibility.

Milwaukee, like Minneapolis, will discover in time that the field is not large enough to support two morning dailies, and one of them will retire.
It is safe to say that the organ, which never had any excuse for existing, will drop out. While there is a good deal of glory in running a newspaper without profit, it lacks the first elements of good business sense.

VALUE OF SPACE.

Suppose that two clothiers—merchants of about equal standing—should divide equally between themselves a very large purchase of goods, thus being able to offer to the public stocks of approximately even value.

Suppose that the advertisements of the two merchants were practically alike in text—prices and descriptions of goods actually duplicated.

But suppose that one merchant confined his advertisement to one column of space in this newspaper, and that the other used a whole page. Is there any doubt at all about what the result would be? Would any one imagine for a moment that the merchant who used a column of space would do as much business as the one who used a page—even though everything else were equal?

Most experienced advertisers will agree that in this kind of a case the results would be very nearly in direct proportion to the space used.

Size is still so much a factor in the world—it decides so many things in business as well as in Statecraft, that the advertiser who gives too little consideration to it handicaps himself

in the race.
In many an instance the mere doubling of the space occupied by a store-advertisement in this newspaper would double the store sales resulting from it. An advertisement will not "stand out," in any eye-catching way,
if it is crowded for space—if it lacks
"elbow room."

The advertiser who has "learned things" about publicity is as careful to provide space in which his advertisement may "come out and be separate" as he is to make text matter dignified and convincing.
Another important element which enters into effective advertising, is the art of saying something.

A full page announcement of generalities, in which the prominent feature is the statement that we have the largest store and best stock in town, is not advertising.

A small card in an obscure corner of the paper, containing the price of half a dozen articles, will attract more readers and sell more goods.

An advertisement should contain first of all, information, and the price of an article is the kind of information which always attracts attention.
The cut of a suit of clothes, a stove, or any other article, without the price, is of but little value as an advertisement.

"When the people are ready to buy,
and some of them are ready every day in the year, they want to know where to buy, and many of them depend upon the newspaper for this information."

This is why Monday is the great sale day in Chicago. The Sunday papers are laden with announcements, and every last one of them is a price list. It pays to use space liberally, but it pays better to say something.

PAUL MORTON.

This little sketch of Paul Morton,
the man who is attempting to straighten out the Equitable Life tangle, was prepared by Edwin Lefevre for the Cosmopolitan magazine. Mr.
Morton gained national prominence at a single bound, and it is interesting to know what kind of a man he is.

"Paul Morton, of course, is more than a working machine. If he were not, he merely would be a freak. As chief
"business-getter" for the Atchafalpa had to help the rehabilitation of the road, to inspire confidence among shippers in its good faith, in its willingness and its ability to keep its promises. To make the public realize that the new Atchafalpa was not the old, he had to be a business politician,
a railroad diplomat."

More Direct But Less Finesse.

"I should say that the diplomacy of Paul Morton might lack the finesse of certain eastern financiers, but that it is more refreshing, more direct, and accomplishes its object probably more completely, and certainly more quickly than the other kind. His is the western attitude, which assumes that the majority of men are good. He can be a good fellow, therefore, because he is normal and healthy and an optimist, with a sense of humor. His diplomacy in business is that of the westerners, to-wit: 'The majority of people are square. I'm square. I'll tell the truth bluntly and I'll hear the truth bluntly. If we agree, very well.
If we can't agree on all points, let us agree on as many as we can.'"

No Time For Sparring.

"Such men have no time to waste in sparring for an opening nor in artistically producing erroneous impressions, because they have so much to do before they die. Men have fooled Morton time and again. No one man has ever fooled him twice. He hears this in mind when he is "sizing up" strangers, for he is not ashamed if one fools him once. But the second time the man tries he might better have tackled a live wire. I thought once he might be vindictive—he was so utterly without the sentimentalism that even Wall street men sometimes show. I said: 'I'd like to ask you a question. If I knew you intimately, I should not have to ask it. But there is no use in asking unless you answer with absolute frankness.'"

A Searching Question.

"Ask it," he said very quickly.
"How do you feel toward people who get the better of you?"
"My fault for letting them. Why feel?"

"If a man should say something mean about you?"

"Look here. Success is like the sunshine—it brings the rattlesnakes out. They can't help being rattlesnakes, can they? What's the use of getting angry?"

"Revenge?"

"Bosh!"

His Philosophy of Life.

"I also asked him, some time afterward, if he had ideals. I sought to convey by my manner that I thought all men should have ideals with a capital I. He answered, 'I haven't any.'"
"I didn't mean hobbies," I explained severely, "but ideals. You must wish to do something."
"Yes; work."

"Hang it, what is your philosophy
of life?"

"Did you ever hear the western advice? 'So live your life each day that you can at any time look any damn man in the eyes and tell him to go to hell? That's my philosophy
of life.'"

He is not a profane man, and he does not carry a chip on each shoulder.
He will assuredly not be misunderstood."

A Hustler.

"Such in brief is Paul Morton—a hustler, blest before his birth in having such parents blest in being born a westerner, blest in his early marriage, blest in being a grandfather at forty-six, blest in his love of work and his active mind and his robust physique and his utter fearlessness.
He is the antithesis of morbidity. He is eminently practical, almost a poet in fancy, and yet he reads not only prose but verse. He loves his family and his affection for his father amounted to veneration. He knows men; he has seen all sorts and conditions of men, good, bad and worse, under all sorts of circumstances, and today, in his forty-eighth year, he believes that men treat you as you treat them."

PRESS COMMENT.

Butte Inter-Mountain: Presently
Honesty will be recognized as the best life insurance policy.

New London Press: Somehow we never like to do anything for a stranger who approaches with the word
"brother."

Milwaukee Sentinel: So John L.
Sullivan is taking fight again. Well, there ought to be one more good boxer left in John.

Chicago Tribune: It is anticipated that there will be no need of commentaries to elucidate or amplify anything the president may say in his next message to congress.

Oshkosh Northwestern: One Washington professor insists that this country was discovered by the Irish. And at least no one will attempt to deny that the Irish took possession of it soon after it was discovered.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Damsite"
is the name suggested for a new postoffice which is to be established in Texas. It is denied that the inhabitants of the place are people who have been forced to move away from Paradiso, Texas.

Superior Leader: Whatever a Duluth head rears itself in this town it should be promptly knocked off. Give those people to understand that they can't throw guano into Superior's face and rub it in with impunity.

Spokane Advocate: Miss Mabel Beam writes she gained six pounds while at Rocky Ridge. How is this for Washington County? She no doubt would have stayed longer but was afraid she would get as fat as Grandma Beam.

Madison Journal: Bishop Grafton of Fond du Lac is out with the proposal that there be two kinds of license, one for beer and the other for the whole thing. He says he is opposed to prohibition. Another man trying to lie up the ocean with pack thread.

La Crosse Leader-Press: The first premiums for county exhibits at the state fair are usually carried away by the northern counties. Wood and Taylor took first and second premiums respectively this year, although many old and wealthy counties were represented.

Oshkosh Northwestern: There is still a delightful uncertainty as to whether the governor is going to move on to Washington when congress opens, or stick to his present positions in order to keep peace and harmony in the ranks of his followers.

And to tell the truth it is strongly suspected that even the governor is himself in some doubt as to which horn of the dilemma to choose.

Superior Telegram: Last Sunday
Mrs. Julius Hinkelmann, widow of a business man of Detroit, Michigan, boarded a steamer at that city, and standing at the rail with her daughter,
when the boat reached the open Lake, she cast her ashes on the waters of Lake Erie, in accordance with her request when alive. While many people do not believe in cremation of the dead, it was very good on the part of Mrs. Hinkelmann to carry out faithfully the wishes of the dear departed.

New York Tribune: Yiddish is an archaic and corrupt form of German extensively spoken by Jews in many countries besides Germany itself. An instance of its popularity is given by a writer. In Jerusalem he met "a worthy man who denounced me for being unable to converse with him in Yiddish. 'You are no Jew,' he protested, 'for you do not know the Jewish language.'"

Rockford Register-Gazette: The reported coming of the Great Western into Rockford has yet to be confirmed, but the transfer station built for the business at the intersection of the new I. I. & M. railway with the former bears out the surmise. Sometimes actions speak with more authority than words. The significance of such an arrangement would be that Rockford would have a new competitor for its large freight traffic, a railroad that is not in the pools and that does business by really competing for it. It would mean that the stretch of road which links this city with the tracks of the Great Western would have all the business it could handle.

Broadhead Independent: It is more than likely that Stalwart and Half-breed means will be forgotten in the selection of a candidate for Governor, as it is extremely doubtful if either faction will be able to carry on the fight along the same lines that have marked the campaigns of the past ten years. The rank and file of the voters of the state, many of whom supported the administration during the past few campaigns cannot be depended upon to act with anyone single to the furtherance of a machine dominated by leaders of any particular faction. We have faith to believe that the people will consider the various candidates and that a fit man will be selected, regardless of whether he be Halfbreed or Stalwart.

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Boston and One in Nashville, Tenn.

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbances, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhoea, or perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.
They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

Now distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Mr. John Fitzgerald of 262 Prospect Avenue.

Mr. Fitzgerald has for many years been a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Janesville, and is a man whose statements weigh sixteen ounces to the pound.

He would be the last man to exaggerate a matter in the least. The other day he ran across a friend on the street who was suffering with his teeth and he said, "You go to Dr. Richards, over Hall & Sayles' jewelry store, and he will fix your teeth up right. His prices won't ruin you either." He further said that Dr. Richards had put in for him six or eight gold crowns some four years ago, and they were as good today as ever and doing the best of service.

The friend took a hike for the said dentist, got relieved and came down stairs and met Mr. Fitzgerald in front of the cigar store. He shook hands with him and thanked him for sending him to the right man. He hadn't been hurt a particle.

This is only one of hundreds of such incidents, so general is becoming the knowledge that if you get the right dentist you don't need to be hurt.

'Twas Loquacity of F. R. Baldwin

That Led To Swift Arrest of Himself And Sadie Martyn—To Be Brought Here For Trial.

Sheriff Cochran left for Chicago this morning and is expected back tonight with Frank R. Baldwin and Sadie Martyn, whose flight from this city was chronicled in Thursday's Gazette.

It develops that the girl joined Baldwin in Milwaukee on Wednesday instead of going directly to Chicago, as she was supposed to have done, and that when they saw Mrs. Jennie Martyn pass on the street they decided to move on to Chicago. After boarding the steamer Virginia Baldwin made the mistake of confiding in a fellow passenger and telling him in great glee how they had evaded the girl's mother. After the boat had arrived and in response to a request from Baldwin, this passenger directed them to the Delavan Hotel at the corner of Clark and Ontario streets, it is presumed that the officers what had transpired. At any rate their arrest followed early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Martyn visited City Marshal Appleby's office last evening and signified her willingness to have her daughter prosecuted as well as Baldwin. She said that she had used every means within her power to persuade or compel her daughter to leave Baldwin and reform but that the girl seemed incorrigible and that she was ready to see both punished to the full extent of the law.

BAPTISTS ENJOY ANNUAL REUNION

OVER FOUR HUNDRED AT CHURCH DAY BANQUET.

THE MEMBERSHIP TOTAL 628

Many Interesting Facts Concerning Religious Work Presented—Rev. Denman's Eloquent Sermon.

Last night the spacious social rooms of the First Baptist church were filled with a happy throng of over four hundred members of the congregation and friends, the occasion being the annual Church Day festival. Bountiful provision for the gathering had been made by the societies in charge of the arrangements and at seven o'clock a delicious repast was spread on tables beautifully decorated with cut-flowers. The interesting aftermath of addresses and reports, over which Rev. R. M. Vanhaan, the pastor, presided as toastmaster, was succeeded by pleasing selections from the orchestra and a male quartet composed of Prof. J. S. Taylor, and the Messrs. Van Pool, Albright, and Allen Lovejoy.

Reports of Officers.

In his response to "Milestones," Church-Clerk J. T. Fitchett stated that there were at the present time 628 members of the congregation. Church Treasurer W. E. Clinton, accounting for his "Stewardship," gave the total receipts of the church for the year as $3,901.49 and the total disbursements as $3,795. In the absence of W. H. Rose, who was unable to be present on account of illness, the report of the committee nominating officers was read by C. P. Beers. In all but a few instances the old ones were re-elected. L. H. Crissey was again chosen as superintendent of the Sunday school; J. T. Fitchett, as church clerk; and W. E. Clinton, as church treasurer. A. F. Hall and C. D. Childs were made trustees.

Echoes of Year's Work.

Under the topic "Echoes," reports were presented by thirteen of the church societies and the superintendent of the Sunday school. Speaking for the King's Daughters, Mrs. T. S. Nolan announced a membership of 69 and receipts amounting to $272.71. Mrs. J. P. Wright's report for the Ladies' Aid Society was written in clever rhyme and was one of the unique contributions of the evening.

Mrs. A. C. Campbell reported good progress in the work of the Mission Circle and similar assurances came from Miss Lottie Skinner of the Farther Lights society, Miss Grace Wright of the Helpful Circle, Ernest Clark of the Young Men's Class, Eugene Currier of the Christian Endeavor, and Miss Mary Barker of the Juniors.

Miss Florence MacDonald announced that there had been 83 members of the Readers' Guild, and Miss Irene Van Vranken stated that there had been an enrollment of 117 in the Go-to-Church Band. Roger Cunningham made a very happy address on the achievements and hopes of the Christian Templars and Mrs. R. M. Vaughan gave a very encouraging report of the progress and interest manifested in the society of The Little Helpers, the latest organization within the congregation.

Mr. Denman's Address.

Following a song by the quartet, Dr. D. T. Denman, pastor of the First Baptist church of Milwaukee, spoke on the subject, "The Relation of the Church to Society." It was a very able and eloquent address, listened to with absorbing interest by everyone present.

He first considered the duty of the church to truth in the intellectual terms of the age. Afterwards he showed how and why it was requisite to incarnate the truth in Christian living. There was also an evangelistic obligation—for in all forms of life, where service ends—decay and death begin.

Committee Chairmen.

Chairmen of the committees were appointed as follows: Ushers, C. H. Eller; Social, Mrs. C. D. Childs; Finance, W. E. Clinton; Baptism, Mrs. M. H. Lawrence; New Members, Mrs. A. Palmer; Church Benevolence, Foreign—C. P. Beers; Home—N. Dearborn; Publication Society, Mark Dunlap; State Missions, I. A. Whitten; Ministerial Education, H. A. Palmer; E. N. Butterfield was made president of the church missionary society.

FOUR SERMONS ON MARRIAGE AND MAKING OF THE SOUL

Will Be Preached on Sunday Evenings Commencing Oct. 1 by Rev. R. C. Denison.

Commencing Sunday next Rev. R. C. Denison will preach a series of four evening sermons on the general topic of "The Marriage and Making of the Soul." The first one will be on "The Soul's Downfall and Recovery," of which Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" will be the sub-text. On Oct. 8 he will take as his topic "The Pilgrimage of the Soul Through Life," as exemplified in George Eliot's "Adam Bede." "The Pilgrimage of the Soul" will be the inspiration of a discourse to be delivered on the evening of Oct. 15 on "The Soul in a Desert Land" and reflections on Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables" will be included in the sermon on "The Redeemed Soul" to be delivered Oct. 22.

EVERY PLAYER WILL BE GIVEN A CHANCE

First High School Football Game of Season At Athletic Park Tomorrow Afternoon.

In the first high school football game of the season to be played between the locals and the Evansville team tomorrow afternoon at Athletic park, Janesville should win, though the contest is merely considered a practice scrimmage and every candidate for the team will be given a chance to show his ability. Twenty-five players have been trying for positions and though some have practically secured their goals their opponents will be given a try. It is probable that the line-up at the opening of the game will be as follows: center, Leo Howland; right tackle, Linas Waterman; right tackle, Harvey Lee; right end, William Langdon; left guard, James Gooden; left tackle, William Tiernan; left end, Richard Saxby; right halfback, John Devins; left halfback, Herbert Mahoney; fullback, Patrick Connors; quarterback, Doane Wright. Among those who will be extended an opportunity to play a portion of the time are: John Ryan, John Connors, Charles Connors, Ward Ryan, Lee Woodworth, Frank McCaffrey, Thomas Cassidy, Elmer Dreyer, William Spohn, Lionel Burgess, Floyd Davis, James Quinn, Franny Hayes and Roy Church. The field is being put in condition for the game and a wire fence has been stretched along either side of the gridiron to keep the crowd off the field and give the spectators no chance to interfere either intentionally or otherwise with the players.

Local Baseball Team Beaten—Two Hundred Bower City Residents Attended.

About thirty Janesville people went to Jefferson today to witness the exhibition and races on the last day of the County fair there. Not a great deal of local interest is on the program but the races have proved a strong attraction and several have not missed an afternoon at the track.

Among those who went from here to Jefferson today are Will Conroy, John J. Sheridan, C. G. Sullivan, Peter Goodman, John J. Comstock, C. K. Milmore, Jesse Dixon, Emory Dunham, Albert Dudley, and Peter Goodman.

Garvin Hit by Ball.

Yesterday was Janesville day at the fair and about two hundred made the trip from here. The Imperial band of fourteen pieces played on the grounds during the day. A Janesville baseball team met a Fort Atkinson nine in the morning and plenty of exciting accidents.

In the baseball contest the locals were defeated by a score of 12 to 7. The team was composed of ex-Rox Sox players and several who played with the Eagle league nine. The composition of the team was as follows: first catcher, Hall; pitcher, Hallett; first base, Garvin and Ward; second base, Baggis; shortstop, C. Casey; third base, Hutchins; left field, Allen; center field, Hager; right field, Ward and Abbott.

Buckta of Jefferson mired. In the third inning Garvin, who was holding down the initial base, was hit in the back with a swift ball and forced to retire from the game as a result. His injury was not serious but incapacitated him as a player for the day.

Horse Drops Dead.

The races were all close and afforded much interest, and three accidents were witnessed by Janesville spectators. While the animals were warming up before the heats a little girl, who had attempted to cross the course, was knocked down by the wheel of a sulky. She was carried away unconscious but not injured, the blow only depriving her of her mind for a minute or two. In the fourth heat of the two-hundred trot one of the contesting animals, Roy Rock, which has become known to local horsemen during the past week, fell dead. The trotter was owned in Kansas City and was valued at $1200. Many saw the animal drop. A runaway also occurred on the track.

The races resulted:

2:27 pace, purse $400—Nubbins, first; Lady Lightfoot, second; Lucky 13, third. Best time, 2:34.
2:30 trot, purse $500—Gypsy King, first; Grisk, second; "Am I Early," third. Best time, 2:19.
2:15 trot, purse $200—Sir Guilford, first; Fox, second; Patchenwood, third. Best time, 2:10.

Woman Struck by Foul.

In the morning during the progress of a game between baseball teams of Rome and Jefferson a Lake Mills woman was hit on the temple by a foul ball. An odd coincidence is that two weeks ago her husband was struck by a foul ball while witnessing a game and his shoulder dislocated, the speed of the sphere being so terrific. Among those who were spectators from here yesterday were Newton Gage, Frank Joyce, Daniel Murphy, Will Conroy, M. Angelo Crowley, Louis Gosselink, K. K. Milmore, J. J. Dulin, J. Kennedy, John Brown, W. T. Tallman, A. James Scott, P. K. Caldwell, Horation Nelson, James Buchanan, Joseph H. Murray, William L. Loucks and Mr. Thomas.

JEWISH NEW YEAR IS TO BEGIN SATURDAY

Significance of The Day To All Jews Who Live Up To Their Own Religion.

Jewish New Year will open on the last day of September. The "awful days" (so designated by the rabbis of old) constituting the New Year and Day of Atonement, are to those within the pale of the synagogue the most sacred period in the year. The two days on which services will be held are the New Year (also called the Day of Memorial, Day of Judgment, and the Day of Blowing the Cornet, the Shofar, or ram's horn), Sept. 30, and the Day of Atonement, Oct. 1, or on the Jewish calendar the tenth day of the seventh month, called Tishri.

The first festival is to serve as a warning to all to prepare for the day of atonement. The orthodox Jew is very strict in following up all the ceremonies and customs accumulated since the dispersion of the chosen people. He inaugurates the New Year a week previous by rising early in the morning, beginning with the previous Sabbath and attending church.

Four more beet sugar factories.

Wisconsin has four beet sugar factories, and she ought to have eight," says Capt. James Davidson, the millionaire boat-builder of Bay City, Mich., who owns factories here and at Cicemans, Mich. "Fond du Lac, Green Bay and the state line between Wisconsin and Illinois would be good points for other factories. I am thinking of building several more with the help of local capital, but not now. Sugar beet men are watching Secretary Taft. We want to see what congress is going to do about the tariff on sugar, especially with reference to the Philippines."

Labor Notes

Alabama coal miners have now been striking fourteen months.

There was a large increase in the membership of the United Mine Workers in the anthracite region last month.

The labor of children in France is regulated by law of November 2, 1892, amended by the law of March 20, 1900, included under the operation of these laws are factories, workshops, mines, and quarries. Workshops in which only members of the family are employed under the direction of the father, mother, or guardian are exempt from the operation of the law. Agricultural and purely mercantile establishments are not included under the operation of the law. Before they may be employed in the establishments specified, children must have completed their thirteenth year and have finished the common school course of education. No female of any age may be employed underground.

Maryland has over 125 local labor unions, mostly in Baltimore.

In North Carolina there are over 50,000 cotton mill workers.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Engineers has a membership of nearly 100,000.

According to reports made by the Bureau of Labor of the Department of Commerce and Labor, the cost of living in America has increased more rapidly than the increase of wages.

Representatives of three important labor organizations, the Brotherhood of Railway Car Men of America, the International Association of Car Inspectors, Car Repairers and Railway Mechanics, met in Buffalo recently for the purpose of reaching some basis of amalgamation on which all unite.

Letter to Mr. W. H. Ashcraft, Janesville, Wis.

Dear Sir: There are two sorts of furniture. You know both: for you sell 'em both. One sort looks better than it is, and the other is better than it looks. There isn't any other sort.

The same, two sorts of paint, no more; and we make 'em both—we make tons of stuff that isn't worth its freight. Belongs to the business—have to. Belongs to your business—you have to.

But this is aside. We put into cans, with our name on, the very best paint there is in the world: Devco lead-and-zinc. It takes fewer gallons than mixed paints, and it wears twice as long as lead-and-oil.

Mr. C. O. Brown, Columbia, S. C. painted his house with Devco lead-and-zinc. The painter, on seeing the quantity sent to the house, said there wasn't enough. There were ten gallons left, when the job was done.

Yours truly, F. W. Devco & Co., New York and Chicago.

P. S.—J. P. Baker sells our paint.

TOMBSTONE VANDAL IS CAUGHT

Officers Capture Man Suspected of Depredations in Cemeteries.

Ishpeming, Mich., Sept. 29.—The man suspected of having wrecked tombstones in a number of cemeteries in Wisconsin and northern Michigan in the past two weeks was captured Thursday morning by Marshal John Lehman and Deputy Marshal Mann Treavor in the act of breaking one stone after he had damaged a couple of others in the Ishpeming cemetery. He is a Hungarian, 46 years old, and answers the description of the man suspected of having committed similar depredations in Escanaba and Gladstone.

The man is shabbily dressed, apparently half starved and carried a turban wrapped in a bandana handkerchief, a part of a Catholic prayer book and other devotional emblems, also a package of clothing in another bandana. When asked why he committed the deed he simply replied in poor English that he did it for the good of God. The man gives evidence of slight mental derangement. He said he was in Escanaba last week, but has been in Ishpeming since last Tuesday.

THE YOKE

A Romance of the Days When the Lord Redeemed the Children of Israel From the Bondage of Egypt

By Elizabeth Miller

Copyright, 1904, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

"Ye need not molder in this cave, I can hide you in Memphis."

"Nay, we will await him here."

"But the Nile will be upon your refuge in three weeks. Ye would starve if ye drowned not," the Egyptian protested earnestly.

"It may be we shall not wait so long," Rachel put in.

Masanath looked at her while she thought busily. "If I tell it, I break a heart. But if they hide here, they die."

After a little sigh she glanced at the wine in one of the small amphorae. "Mayhap the plague is past," she said, blushing, "and I am at ease."

Rachel took up another jar and went forth. The lady creature in the corner, tethered to the amphora rack, slipped his collar and followed her.

As soon as the Israelite was gone Masanath went into the inner chamber. Standing by the old woman, who lay upon a mattress set on the top of the sarcophagus, she said hurriedly:

"Ye may not remain here. Kenekes is known to me and he will not return. He is dead."

"How did he die?"

"By drowning. His boat was discovered battered and overturned among the wharf piling at Memphis some weeks ago."

The old woman was silent for a moment, and then she shook her head.

"He is a resourceful youth, and he may have procured another boat and set this one adrift to deceive his enemies. Yet the time has been so long it may be, it may be."

"None in Memphis doubts it. His father hath given him up, and his house and his people are in mourning. But we may not lose this moment in surmises. Wilt thou go with me into Memphis—if this sending is withdrawn?"

"There is no other choice," Deborah answered after some pondering. "Kenekes offered us refuge with his father, but Rachel hesitated to accept. The sorry news must be told her ere she would go."

"Nay; keep it from her yet awhile."

"How may we?" Deborah asked helplessly.

"Listen. I am a householder in Memphis for a year. The place is secure from much visiting, and only my trusted servants are there. They will not tell her; none else will. As thou sayest, the young man may not be dead. And, furthermore, I may as well work good out of an evil I cannot escape. I am betrothed to the heir of the crown of Egypt."

Deborah hung up her hand, drawing away in her amazement.

"Thou! A coming queen over the proud land of Mizraim, a guest in the retreat of enslaved Israel!"

Masanath bent her head. "Ye in your want and distress are not more poor or wretched than I. But enough of this. I would have said that if I loved the prince I can ask Rachel's freedom at his hands."

"So thou canst," Deborah said eagerly, but before she could continue Rachel appeared at the outer opening, the amphora held by one arm, the ape by the other. Her face was alight with a smile that seemed dangerously akin to tears.

"Here is water, clean and fresh, but the Nile is bank-full of the plague. It was Amphis that showed me!"

After seven days the horror on the waters was gone. It went as miasma is dispelled by the sun and wind, as pestilence is killed by the frost—unseen, unprotesting. The lifting of the plague was as awesome as its coming.

Rachel and Masanath carried the punt, the boat of Khafra and Sagar.

"Thou! A coming queen!"

and launched it on the clean waters. Then they prepared themselves and Deborah and Amphis for a journey, and ere they departed Masanath, at Rachel's bidding, wrote with a soft sponstone upon the rock over the portal of the tomb the whereabouts of its willow dwellers:

"For whom thou seekest thou wilt find at the mansion of Har-hat in the city."

At sunset Rachel, all unsuspecting, was sheltered in the house of her enemy.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE CONSPIRACY.

THE Nile rose and fell, and the seasons shifted until eight months had passed. The period was inconceivable, but its events had never been equaled in a like space, or a generation, or a whole dynasty, or in all the history of Egypt.

One morning early in March Seti stood beside the parapet on the palace of the king in Tanis. His eyes were fixed on the shimmering line of the northern level, but he did not see it. Some one came with silent footfall and laid a hand on his arm.

He turned and looked into Ta-user's eyes. His face softened, and he took the hand between his own.

"Alas, this day thou returnest into the Hakk-hab," he said.

She nodded. "Would I could take thee with me, but not yet, not yet. Wait till thou art a little older."

He sighed and looked away again. "What weighty things absorb my prince?" she asked.

"I mused on mine own uselessness," he answered.

"Thou hast wealth," she began and paused.

"Wherein doth that make me useful?"

"Much can be done with gold."

"Ta-user, what wouldst thou have me do?"

"I would have thee be useful."

"I shall throw away my lovely trappings," he said, "and become a lifter of water this day."

"Seti," she said sternly, putting his hand away, "with thy people imperiled by the sorcery of a wizard, with thy realm desolated by the plagues of his sending, canst thou, on whom I have built so much, thus lightly consider thy uses and ignore the things set at thy very hand to do?"

"I have no weight with my father," he said soberly. "Thou knowest that Egypt will never have peace until the Hebrews depart. But I cannot persuade my father to release them, and I cannot persuade the Israelite to content himself to stay. Thou dost demand much of me if thou dost demand of me the impossible."

"And thou art at thy wits' end?" she asked.

"A little way to go. Help me, Ta-user. Bear with me."

She moved closer to him and absently smoothed down the fine locks, disordered by the wind. Presently she lifted his face and said with sudden impulsiveness:

"Dost, of a truth, believe everything that is told thee?"

"Am I overcredulous?" he asked.

"Thou art. Thou believest this Hebrew to be honest in his show of interest in his people?"

"I cannot doubt him, Ta-user. One has but to see him to be convinced."

"One has but to see him to know that he might be coaxed into passiveness with that for which an Israelite would sell his mummy—gold!"

"Nay, nay," Seti exclaimed. "Thou dost wrong him! He is the soul of misdirected zeal. His is an earnestness not to be frightened with death nor abated with bribes."

She laughed a cool laugh.

"Deliver to him but the price he names, and the Israelite unrest will settle like a swarm of smoked bees."

"Ta-user, it is thou that art deceived."

Seti remonstrated. "Even the Pharaoh does not hesitate to assert that Moses is terribly upright. Not even he would dream of offering the wizard Hebrew a peace tribute."

Gazing down into his eyes, she said, with sudden solemnity:

"My prince, may I give my life into thy hands?"

"The gods overtake me with their vengeance if I guard it not," he exclaimed. She drew him from his place on the parapet and led him to a seat in a corner near the double towers. There, she sat, and he dropped down at her feet. He crossed his arms over her lap and lifted his face to her.

Seti was ripe to be plucked by treachery. His was the faith that is lured by a suggestion of weakness.

"While I dwell obscurely in the Hakk-hab," she began, "I was much among the partisans of Amon-meses. They are friends of the Pharaoh now, so what I tell is dead sedition. But I heard it when it lived, and thou knowest the penalty invited by him who listens to criticism of the king. Attend me, then, for the story is short."

"The history of Moses is an old tale to thee. Thy noble grandfathers first queen, Nefertari Thermuthis, adopted the Hebrew, and when she died he shared in the allotment of her treasure. But Moses was an exile in Midian at the time, and his share was left with Shonurus, then the heir, to be given over to the foster son when he should return. But Shonurus died, and all thy father's older brothers, so the gracious Menephtah came to wear the crown. To him fell the guardianship of the Hebrew's treasure till what time he should return. Hath thy father delivered to him his inheritance?"

Seti's face flamed, but before he could speak she went on: "Not so; not one copper weight. It lies untouched in the treasury. Thine august sire does not use it because he hath wealth more than he can spend. But it is the Hebrew's, and if it were delivered into his hands it would redeem Egypt. I know it. There, it is done. My life is in thy hands."

The prince looked at her with wide eyes, his cheeks flushed, his lips silent.

"Wouldst thou have proof?" she continued recklessly. "Seek out Hotep, who hath been keeper of the records at Pithom, and ask him."

"Did he tell thee?" Seti demanded.

"Nay, I learned it from another source, not in the palace." The prince fapsed into silence, his eyes averted. Ta-user regarded him intently. Suddenly he raised his head.

"Dost thou know the amount of his share?" he asked.

"It is but a moderate part of the queen's fortune, since each of the king's children by his many women was included."

"He shall have it," Seti said almost impatiently. "Out of mine own wealth he shall have it, not as a bribe—he would not have it so—but because it is his."

She caught his hands to her breast and cried out in delight.

"And I shall be thy lieutenant, and none shall know of it save thee and me."

"Nay, there is danger in this," he said gently, "and I would not imperil thee. Already thou hast overstepped safety for Egypt's sake and mine. More than this I will not let thee do."

She pouted and, putting him away from her, arose and left him. He followed her and took her hands.

"A confederate thou must have," she complained, "and whom dost thou trust more than Ta-user?"

"Thou dost bury me in my plan making," he remonstrated mildly. "Mayhap I shall choose Hotep."

She hung up her head, her face the picture of dismay.

"Nay, nay, not Hotep! Of all thy world not Hotep!" she exclaimed.

He lifted his brows in amazement. "Surely thou dost not question his fidelity—his power?"

"Nay, but dost thou not guess what he will do? Thou child! Abet thee! Nay, he would set his foot upon thy plan and flog thee at once with his little hand."

"Hotep will obey as I command, that thou knowest," he said, with dignity.

"Thou wilt not reach the point of command with him," she vehemently insisted. "He would catch thee intent ere thou hadst stated it and would make thee ashamed at thyself in a twinkling by his smooth reasoning and vivid analogies. Nay, if thou art to have thy way in this, I wash my hands of it. We are as good as undone."

She turned away from him, but he followed her contritely.

"I submit," he said helplessly. "Advise me, but I—nay, ask me not to endanger thee, Ta-user."

She slipped her arm about his neck and pressed close to him.

"Nay, Seti, thou dost overestimate the peril. The Hebrew will not betray us, and who else will know of it? I shall make a journey into Goshen, find Moses and bid him meet thee at a certain place. There thou shalt come at a certain time with the treasure, and the feat is done. But if we fail—she flung her head back and bewitched him with a heavy eye—"will it be hard for me to persuade the king?"

Seti contemplated her with bewilderment in his face. The youth and innocence in his young soul revolted, but there was another element that yielded and was pleased.

"Have it thy way, Ta-user," he said, with hesitation in his words, while he continued to gaze helplessly into her compelling eyes.

She laughed and kissed him. "I will see thee again soon." Putting him back from her, she descended the stairway.

Straight through the corridors toward the royal apartments she went. There was an elasticity in her step that spoke of exultation.

The Hathors were indulging her beyond reason.

A soldier of the royal guard paced outside the doorway of the king's apartments. Ta-user hung him a smile, and, passing him without a word of leave asking, smiled again and disappeared through the door.

Menephtah, who sat alone, raised his head from the scroll he was laboriously spelling. If he had meant to resent the intrusion the impulse died within him at the charming obedience the princess made.

As she arose at his sign Har-hat entered. Ta-user came near to the king, smiling triumphantly at the fan bearer.

James Greenwood of Kenosha was killed in the yards of the Chicago & Alton railway at Springfield, Ill., on Thursday.

A Wart or Pimple MAY BE CANCEROUS.

When a wart, mole or pimple shows any sign of tenderness it is a warning that bad blood is behind it. Often these places are on the face, hands, legs or other part of the body for years, and give no sign to cause uneasiness, and then with a little rough handling, a slight cut or bruise will develop into a sore that refuses to heal, and the sufferer finds himself afflicted with a cancerous ulcer.

About three years ago a blister came on the right side of my nose. It grew rapidly in spite of all efforts to heal it; the pain was not very severe at first, but increased when the sore began to surface and discharge matter. At times the place would scab over and appear to be getting well, but the scab would drop off, leaving a red, angry-looking ulcer. I had almost despaired of ever curing it, when my attention was called to S. S. S., and after taking a few bottles the sore began to gradually grow smaller. The discharge stopped and I was cured.

Owensboro, Ky. JNO. MASSIE.

If the blood is pure and healthy these sores cannot exist. S. S. S. is the ideal blood purifier. It cleanses the blood of all poisons and impurities, making it strong and vigorous and able to supply the body with the strength and nourishment it needs. There is nothing that acts so promptly as S. S. S., toning up the entire system, helping the general health and curing the skin diseases.

Do not let a wart or pimple develop into a cancerous ulcer, but purify your blood with S. S. S. SENATOR MORGAN ON CANAL PLANS

Alabama Statesman Hurls Hot Shot at Trip of Advisory Board.

GROWS SARCASTIC IN ANSWER

Declares it is impossible for a Layman to Form Correct Ideas of the Best Way to Build Locks to Control the Waters.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 29.—Senator Morgan has hurled a thunderbolt at President Shonts of the Panama canal commission in a letter declining an invitation to accompany the expert engineers to the canal zone. The Senator declares it as his belief that no good can be accomplished by the trip, and "distrusts its advantage to Congress." His letter to Mr. Shonts is as follows:

"Dear Sir: In your telegram of the 22d inst. you speak of a large party who are to sail with the commission and the advisory board to Colon, and are to have comfortable facilities for making tours of inspection and examination of the canal.

"In the matter of sightseeing such facilities will afford much pleasure, which I regret I am not prepared to enjoy; but I do not suppose that such a surface inspection of the appearance and conditions in Panama would give me any data from which I could form any judgment as to the practicability of a lock canal or a sea level canal, or the preference due to either plan, or as to the cost or the time required for the completion of the canal on either plan.

Fires Sarcastic at Board.

"I could not inform the able, courageous and distinguished chief of the hygienic service in the canal zone whether, if we should flood all the breeding places of the stegomyia fasciata with great lakes, we would not increase them a thousand-fold along the margins of the great bodies of fresh water in the tropical undergrowth that would spring up around them in a few hours. Indeed, there is no question among the many vital ones that concern this great inquiry upon which any rational mind could give any reliable information or form any correct judgment from what one could see or hear in the tours along the canal that this party of visitors will have the opportunity to make.

Distrusts Expert's Mission.

"I must say that I distrust the expected advantages to Congress or to the country of such an excursion, or the value of any opinions that may be formed on great engineering problems by a body of gentlemen who are nonprofessional and must form their conclusions from surface appearances. Neither of these important committees can derive any legitimate conclusions upon vital facts that must control that vast subject from the opinions of those who are mere guests of an excursion party, and they will be men of extraordinary self-poise if they are not influenced by what may be a prevailing sentiment among them.

"Since the ratification of the Hay-Varilla treaty, which I opposed, I have done all that I could and much more than I thought could ever be of advantage to the country to sustain the government in its purpose to construct a canal at Panama. Yet I have not believed that success could crown their efforts. You may find the key to unlock the barriers that nature has interposed at Panama. If you should be so fortunate I will applaud your genius and courage. I will vote to provide you with every reasonable authority and power to accomplish your task and to meet your tremendous responsibility.

"In the effort to answer your friendly invitation with perfect frankness, if I have said anything that jars upon your sensibilities I have not so intended it, and would regret it. I beg to assure you of my sincere respect and to say that I will rejoice with you in the successful completion of the great work in your charge."

PRESENTS COMPLAINT BY PUBLIC

Railroad Attorney Says Amount of Profits is Company's Concern.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—General Counsel William E. Brown of the Chicago & Alton road has filed a reply brief in the shippers' case before the railroad and warehouse commission, in which he denies that the public is in any way interested in either the capitalization or the profits of the railroads so far as the present case is concerned. He denies that the roads are overcapitalized, as charged in the brief of former Attorney General Hamilton, but says that if it were true the argument would have no place in the case. Mr. Brown admits that the public may complain where there is discrimination, but denies that any such discrimination has been shown.

SUPERINTENDENT TO SUE THE STATE

Superintendent of Tazewell Is Denied Voucher for Salary Because Report Is Said to Be Incorrect.

Pekin, Ill., Sept. 29.—It is not unlikely that the action of the state authorities at Springfield in holding up the salary of County Superintendent of Schools William P. Madry, because of an alleged discrepancy in his report, will result in a lawsuit which will be of interest to a number of cities in Illinois having special school charters.

The pay of the Tazewell county superintendent is withheld for the reason that, in the view of the state superintendent, his report is incomplete. The county superintendent denies this, but State Auditor McCullough is acting under instructions of the state superintendent and until the latter says so he will not issue the necessary warrant. A suit in mandamus to compel him to act will be necessary.

to determine the question at issue. If the position taken by the state superintendent be correct, a number of county superintendents in the state will find their reports incorrect, for Pekin is not the only special school district issuing certificates to its own school teachers and permitting them to teach without certificates from the county superintendent. The same course is pursued in Peoria, where for years the teachers have been examined by the local school officials. Until recently Springfield and Quincy and, perhaps, other cities did the same thing.
